THE NATION'S DEAD.

Four hundred thousand men,
The brave—the good—the true,
In tangled wood, in mountain glen,
On battle plain, in prison pen,
Lie dead for me and you!
Four hundred thousand of the brave,
Have made our ransomed soil their grave,
For me and you,
Good friend, for me and you!

In many a fevered swamp,
By many a black bayou,
In many a cold frozen camp,
The weary sentinel ceased his tramp,
And died for me and you!
From Western plain to ocean tide,
Are stretched the graves of those who died,
For me and you!
Good friend for me and you!

On many a bloody plain,
Their ready swords they drew
And poured their life blood like the rain,
A home—a heritage to gain,
To gain for me and you!
Our brothers mustered side by side,
They marched and fought and bravely died,
For me and you!
Good friend, for me and you!

Up many a fortress wall,
They charged—those boys in blue—
Mid surging smoke, and volleyed ball,
The bravest were the first to fall!
To fall for me and you!
These noble men—the nation's pride—
Four hundred thousand men have died,
For me and you!
Good friend, for me and you!

In treason's prison-hold,
Their martyr spirits grew
To stature like the saints of old,
While, amid agonies untold,
They starved for me and you!
The good, the patient, and the tried,
Four hundred thousand men have died,
For me and you!
Good friend, for me and you!

A debt we never can pay,
To them as justly due,
And to the nation's latest day,
Our children's children still shall say,
"They died for me and you!"
Four hundred thousand of the brave,
Made this ransomed soil their grave,
For me and you!
Good friend, for me and you! E. C. F.

From the Fredericksburg News.
THE OLD CHIMNEY.

I.
Fragment of other years,
Relic of days of old!
All around thee waste appears,
Alone thou standest bold!
Who built thee, aged pile?
Who hugged thy jambs of stone?
Where are they now, the while
Thou standest here alone?
'Twas evening as a wanderer's way,
That through the Old Dominion lay,
Led near a chimney mouldering high
In melancholy majesty.
Dim twilight robed the circling vale,
While lingered still on sunbeam pale,
As hopes upon the dying smile,
And lit the dark decaying pile.

II.
About thee, years ago,
A stately mansion rose;
Here was a flowery lawn
Where now the nightshade blows.
Perchance beside thy hearth
Youth dreamed of deathless names
And golden hopes had birth
That soared up with thy flames.
Here rose childhood happy roved;
Here chivalry hath knelt and loved;
Pale sorrow, too, hath tarried here,
And tears bedewed the burdened bier;
Here merry youth and beauty thronged,
And violets notes the dance prolonged;
Here oft in moonlit hollowness
Love whispered wordless tenderness.

III.
Why standest thou, lone mark?
Gray ruins, mist, and mould
Are dripping where thy spark
Glimmered in times of old.
Within thy bosom now
The snake hath made his home;
The owl from 'neath thy brow
Hoots in his nightly gloom.
The chirping cricket's song has ceased,
The silent spider spreads his feast;
Here did thy winter welcome shine,
Where darkly creeps the poison vine,
So hopes too bright forsake the breast,
And canker comes a constant guest.
Old fragments! perish with thy lore,
No longer memory implore.

IV.
Yet stand, lone, ancient column!
Thy witness stands as lone!
Like thee, a sealed volume,
With story all unknown.
As on thy brow the light,
So gaily hopes on mine;
But soon 'twill sink in night—
Here's ruin, such as thine.
Yes, stand thou still. I love to see
The building ivy broader there,
As if, like infancy, to try
To smile off age's memory.
And thou, grim spoiler, spare a time
This ruin, holier far than prime,
To stand, 'mid perished bloom, like truth
Surviving life's dream woke in youth.

A young lady "burst into tears," the other day, but has been put together again, and is now wearing hoops to prevent a recurrence of the accident.

The Fenian Movement—What it is Doing.

The New York world gives some alleged facts in reference to the Fenian organization. There are, at present, about five hundred circles in the country, and they are increasing at the rate of one hundred per month. The circles number from one hundred to three hundred men. There are also three hundred female circles in the country, presided over by Miss Ellen Mahony, who is Female Head Center. She is also Principal of the Normal School at Chicago. The monthly expenses of the body amount to about $60,000, and it is said the tax of $20 a man on the Fenians in the United States, is nearly paid up, and the aggregate assessment will reach 500,000. There is in New York a military engineering class of one hundred, taught by an engineer formerly on McClellan's staff. Subscriptions to large amounts are received every week from all parts of the country. A bank account is kept by the Brotherhood. One of the Bank-note Companies is printing eight per cent bonds in the name of the Irish Republic. They will be ready next week. They are in denominations of 10's, 20's, 100's, 500's and 1,000's. In the center will be a figure of Liberty drawing a sword, and at the sides vignettes of Emmet and Lincoln. It is confidently hoped these will be taken up rapidly, and large orders will come from the country and West. It is stated that John Morrissey had offered to take $100,000 of the bonds. At the Fenian headquarters in Duane street, they are continually boxing up muskets, but of course no information given where they are to be sent. [St. Louis Dispatch.

How Lee became a Rebel.

In the course of a recent long letter, by Hon. Montgomery Blair, on "The Rebellion—where the guilt lies," he narrates the following circumstance:
"Let me observe here that it was the fall of Sumpter that produced on the instant the ordinance of secession, and filled Virginia with troops from the gulf States to carry it before the people. Its effect upon ordinary men may be conceived by the influence exerted over General Lee. My father was authorized by the President, and Mr. Cameron, Secretary of War, to converse with General Lee, and ascertain whether he would accept the command of our army in the field. The latter was written for, and he met my father at my house, when they conversed for an hour or more. It was a few days before the ordinance was passed. General Lee concluded the conversation by saying secession was anarchy, and added, if he owned the four million of slaves in the South, he would cheerfully sacrifice them to the Union; but he did not know how he could draw his sword on his native State. He said he would see General Scott on the subject before he decided. A committee from the Virginia convention, while my father and the General conversed, were hunting for him through the city. They met on his leaving the house. He repaired with them to consult the convention, as I have since learned, about some mode of settlement. The fall of Sumpter settled the question for him and the convention."

A Great Oil Purchase—Pithole Sold to a Chicago Firm for a Million and a Half Dollars.

The Chicago Tribune, of Saturday, says: "The chief sensation in oil, and indeed the most considerable oil item that ever had a Chicago basis, is the purchase a few days since, by Messrs. Wright & Chittenden (the latter Geo. R. Chittenden of this city, of the Holmden farm, Pithole,) of the most valuable single oil tract in the world. The purchase is understood to be for one million and a half dollars, for which substantial sum Messrs. Prather & Duncan have parted with their entire land interest at Pithole, and is now the property of the above named gentlemen. It includes the land interest in the great flowing wells whose net income to Messrs. Wright & Chittenden is some four or five thousand dollars per day. These wells include the United States well, and its greater and less neighbors, and the whole site of Pithole City, with leases to the amount of $80,000 annual rental, together with the depot grounds. One hundred and thirty wells are going down on the property of which the present owners of the farm hold the one quarter interest."

Sale by Administrators

According to existing laws no sale of real estate by any administrator or executor is valid that is not first advertised in some newspaper published in the county where the land is situated, if there be one. The following is the law, approved Jan. 31, 1865. (See Session Acts page 4.)

In all public sale of real estate made by any executor or administrator, he shall cause a notice containing a particular description of the estate to be sold, and stating the time, place and terms of sale, to be published for four weeks prior to said sale, in some newspaper printed in said county where the land is situated, if there be one; if there be no paper published in said county, he shall put up a copy of such notice in ten public places in the county in which the sale is to be made, at least twenty days before the day of sale.

§ 3. This act to take effect and be in force from and after its passage.
Approved January 31, 1865.

The Eternal City is likely soon to claim the fitness of the name. The mouth of the Tiber, it is said, has been surveyed, and the work of restoring the harbor is to be undertaken. Who can tell? Might not Rome become again the capital of the Old World?
